6. Company overview

Octopus Energy Limited is a private limited company incorporated in England and Wales on 14 October 2014, operating in the energy retailing industry [1][31]. It provides electricity, gas, and renewable energy services globally, with a focus on smart tariffs, electric vehicle charging, and green energy solutions [8][14]. The company is headquartered at Uk House, 5th Floor, 164-182 Oxford Street, London, W1D 1NN [1]. It was formerly known as Octopus Energy Holdings Limited and Octopus Energy Limited, with a name change effective 20 October 2020 [8][5]. The company holds an electricity supply license in the UK and has been appointed as an Electricity Supplier of Last Resort by Ofgem [9][11]. It operates as a subsidiary of Octopus Energy Group Limited, which is ultimately controlled by OE Holdco Ltd, a UK-based holding company [8][18]. The company has expanded into international markets, including the UAE, and has entered into strategic agreements, such as a framework with Masdar for battery storage management [12][19]. It is also involved in the acquisition and integration of Bulb Energy customers, a process that has been subject to regulatory and legal scrutiny [24][42].

7. Ownership / UBO

UBO has not been formally verified unless explicitly supported by submitted documents. The following summarises ownership signals from available inputs. Identified UBO (per available evidence): Not identified Octopus Energy Limited is a subsidiary of Octopus Energy Group Limited, which is registered under company number 09718624 [5]. The ultimate parent company is OE Holdco Ltd, a UK-based holding company that has no listed owner since September 2022 [8][18]. According to the Octopus Energy Group Limited accounts, the shareholders at 30 April 2022 included: Octopus Energy HoldCo Ltd (39.07%), Origin Energy International Holding Pty Ltd (16.49%), Tokyo Gas UK Ltd (7.48%), GIM Willow (Scotland) LP (8.97%), Canadian Pension Plan (CPP) Investment Board (2.99%), and management & employees via Octopus Nominees Ltd (24.4%) [34]. The ownership structure is complex and opaque, with multiple interlinked corporate entities and no publicly disclosed ultimate beneficial owner [18]. The company is not directly owned by any individual, and no formal UBO declaration was provided in the KYC documents [18].

8. Adverse media

British Gas has called for a ban on Octopus Energy from acquiring new customers, urging Ofgem and the UK government to enforce a prohibition due to concerns about regulatory compliance and market stability [25]. The company has been criticized for its financial resilience, with one analysis stating that it lacks confidence from lenders and may not be a robust long-term business despite being the UK's largest energy supplier [26]. Customers have publicly criticized the company's service, with complaints about sudden fee increases from £0 to £75 [43]. The company's acquisition of Bulb Energy customers has been challenged in legal proceedings, and the transfer was subject to regulatory review [24][42]. Additionally, the company has been linked to a broader debate on 'crisis capitalism' in the energy sector [26]. No sanctions or regulatory enforcement actions were identified in the sources searched.

9. Litigation

Octopus Energy Limited is involved in multiple legal proceedings. In the U.S., it is a defendant in Johnson v. Octopus Energy LLC, a contract dispute filed in the U.S. District Court for the Northern District of Texas on 4 February 2025 [20]. In the UK, Phillip Christopher Cook v Octopus Energy Limited was concluded in January 2026, with the claimant alleging a lack of energy supply from April 2025 and earlier periods, citing medical hardship [22]. The company has also been involved in a judicial review challenge related to the transfer of Bulb Energy's business, which was dismissed by the Divisional Court in March 2023 [24]. These cases highlight ongoing legal exposure related to customer service, supply continuity, and regulatory compliance.

10. Reputation / management

Octopus Energy Limited maintains a strong public presence through its website, social media, and corporate communications. The company emphasizes its commitment to green energy, innovation, and customer service, with initiatives such as the Kraken technology platform and smart tariffs [8][14]. It has been featured in positive media coverage, including interviews with founder Greg Jackson on topics such as climate change and business strategy [37][40][41]. The company also engages in corporate social responsibility, including investments in renewable energy generation and energy-efficient solutions [14]. However, its reputation is also subject to public scrutiny, with criticism over customer service and financial stability [26][43]. The company's leadership, particularly Greg Jackson, is frequently cited in media and industry discussions, reflecting its visibility in the energy sector.
